

U. S. INTERFERES IN BEHALF OF MADERO; FACT NEW REVOLUTION

Asks That Former President General Porfirio Diaz Is on Be Given F... Hearing His Way From France; Three States Rebel at All Haz...

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Intervention of the United States government to secure justice, or at least a fair trial for the fallen president, Francisco Madero, of Mexico, as announced by Secretary Knox at the cabinet meeting today, was an unexpected development of the state department's policy in regard to that republic. As recently as yesterday it was announced that there was no intention to depart from the policy of nonintervention in the Mexican troubles.

It appears, however, that this statement was based on the natural assumption that the newly established Mexican government would observe the amenities of civilized warfare in its treatment of prisoners of either high or low degree, and when the killing of Gustavo Madero gave ground for genuine apprehension for the fate of the ex-president, it was felt that the time had come to stretch forth a restraining hand.

The administration feels that it has not in any manner departed from its policy of strict neutrality. Its action was purely impersonal and probably would have followed the same course had General Diaz been captured by Madero and threatened with death without the process of law. The fact is, though not officially admitted, in an official manner the state department did bring to bear influences which saved Diaz from death, when he was captured by General Beltrán at Vera Cruz last fall.

Believe Mexicans Concur. It is believed that Mexican people themselves, after the heat of combat is over, will be the first to embrace gratitude to the United States government for preventing the placing of such a spot upon the reputation of their country as would follow what practically would amount to murder of a deposed president.

It is recalled in some quarters that the action of the administration in Madero's case is precisely the reverse of that taken 46 years ago, when President Andrew Johnson refused to intervene to prevent the shooting of the unfortunate General Beauregard, who was, by a singular coincidence, betrayed by the military leader, General Lopez, who was his main reliance.

Given Legal Trial. In that case, however, it is pointed out that Maximilian was in Mexico against the will of the United States and also that he was tried by a legal tribunal in the form of a court martial.

While it is hoped that the Huerta government will be able to draw to its support all of the revolutionary leaders of the north and south, the administration continues under the belief that prudence dictates the continuance of the military and naval policy of preparedness. Pursuant to this, the first and fifth brigades of the army remain under preparatory orders for foreign service, and the three army transports which are due to arrive at Galveston early next week will be retained there, ready to embark troops at a moment's notice.

BONDS FOR CLANCY AND TVEITMOE ARE SENT EAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—Bonds for the release from the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., of Olaf A. Tveitmoe and Eugene Clancy, California labor leaders who were convicted in the recent Indianapolis dynamite conspiracy trial, have been forwarded to Indianapolis through the State Building Trades council.

Tveitmoe's bonds consist of real estate securities valued at $42,550. Cash bonds of more than $60,000 were raised for Clancy by San Francisco unions.

BUSINESS MEN GIVEN COOL RECEPTION WHEN THEY APPEAR BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Pueblo Solon Peeved Over Newspaper Article and Makes Bitter Attack

By WALTER LAWSON WILDER.

DENVER, Feb. 21.—A joint session of the legislature to hear representatives of Denver commercial organizations regarding pending bills and other matters threatened to develop into a very stormy affair. At the beginning of the house session this afternoon, Representative Gallup called the attention of the house to an article in a Denver paper which he said was an insult to every member of the assembly. For the reason that it said the Denver men were coming up to tell the assembly what to do, he said that the people outside of Denver had as much intelligence and as much conscience in regard to those matters as the people of Denver, and the members of the assembly who had been sitting up late nights framing these laws did not need the instruction of the Denver men. He asked the speaker if the statement of the newspaper was authorized, declaring that unless it was deleted he would move the withdrawal of the invitation to the commercial bodies. Speaker Skinner assured the Pueblo member that he had received a telephone message earlier in the day denying the statements made in the newspaper article, and after the matter had been discussed by two of the Denver representatives, Gallup withdrew his motion.

Brief Speeches Made. Immediately thereafter the senate was announced and the selected speakers, including representatives of the various commercial bodies, made brief speeches, urging the assembly to pass conservative and constructive legislation.

MUST RESTORE PEACE---HUERTA

METHODS OF GEN. DIAZ TO BE USED

Will Try Army Officials on Old Charges, It Is Reported

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 21.—That the new administration in Mexico expects to use the methods of Porfirio Diaz so far as is possible in governing the country, was made evident today in a conversation Provisional President Huerta had with newspaper men.

President Huerta declared that no matter what the cost should be, or who the men were who paid it, peace would be restored in Mexico. He said it was his ambition that when he left the presidency, people would say of him, "He has restored order throughout Mexico, made safe the investment of money and rendered secure the lives and interests of all, both foreigners and Mexicans."

Calmly and dispassionately General Huerta outlined his program for the use of the army in restoring and maintaining order. He admitted that in many parts of the republic, where the news of the change in government had not been received, it was not in accord with peace. To these sections, he said, he would send emissaries in an attempt to bring about order, or if necessary, troops would be dispatched to them to inform the people of the government's desires.

Seeks to Restore Peace. "I want to restore to Mexico that uninterrupted current of riches which is her right," the president continued, "and to bring about such conditions in the country that all the diplomats will feel that their subjects are secure."

The president declared that he favored a free press in Mexico, saying that even antagonistic organs were desirable since from them the administration might learn of evils that otherwise might be hidden.

An emissary of President Huerta left today for Saltillo, capital of the state of Coahuila, bearing a letter to Governor Venustiano Carranza, who is reported to be raising an army to fight the new government. In this letter a final effort is made to gain the governor's adhesion to the new regime. A train, loaded with troops, also is on its way to Saltillo from the capital and in the event that Governor Carranza maintains his attitude of opposition, these men will be used against him and his followers.

The Albuquerque Commercial club will provide Dr. Friedmann with a hospital, and every other facility for continuing his work.

RANCHER BURIED UNDER SNOWSLIDE

WESTCLIFFE, Colo., Feb. 21.—A snowslide near here today killed 20 head of cattle in a barn on the ranch belonging to Alfred Pipes, and demolished the house in which Pipes was at the time.

Pipes heard the rumble of the slide, went to the window and saw what looked like the entire mountain side slipping onto his property at its foot. He barricaded his windows just as the slide struck his house and himself, hastened into the center of the building.

Though the house was crushed and buried under the snow, Pipes succeeded in digging his way out of the ruins, uninjured.

GREAT DAMAGE IS DONE AT MANY POINTS

Chicago Isolated From Rest of World; Wires Down, Traffic Demoralized

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 21.—A heavy snow, which began early today, has done considerable damage to the telegraph and telephone wires. Communication in parts of the middle west tonight was difficult. Street cars were stopped, and many trains were delayed.

Many telephone wires were snapped off today. Four hundred telephones in Chicago were out of commission. Reports from Iowa state that a heavy snow fell there today, that telephone and telegraph lines were demoralized and many trains were running behind their schedules.

Snow and colder weather in this territory was predicted by the local forecast tonight.

Omaha in Grip Storm. OMAHA, Feb. 21.—A snow and sleet storm, which began early today, over Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas, had not abated late tonight. A strong wind blew the snow into drifts and made all kinds of communication questionable. Railroads began tonight to feel the effect of the storm which already had all but demoralized communication by telegraph and telephone. Street traffic in this city was badly hampered, but snow plows and sweepers kept the streets reasonably clear until late at night.

Over the western half of Iowa the storm has raged for more than 20 hours, with a snowfall of as much as 20 inches in many places.

"PILGRIMS" MORE LIKE MUD STATUES THAN WOMEN; TAFT NOR WILSON TO VIEW PARADE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—According to information received at the suffrage headquarters today, neither President Taft nor President-elect Wilson will be present March 3 to review the suffrage parade that will march down Pennsylvania avenue from Capitol hill. Mrs. Taft, however, will occupy the presidential box with a party of friends.

President Taft sent word in response to an invitation that it would not be possible for him to review the parade because of the great pressure of business incident to the transfer of his executive duties to his successor. President-elect Wilson cannot be present because he is not due in Washington until after the parade is over.

It was announced today that President Taft has promised the suffragists a special cavalry escort of honor for their procession. The detachment will act as a guard, along the line of march.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Feb. 21.—With slightly depleted ranks, "General" Rosalie Jones' little band of suffrage pilgrims struggled into Havre de Grace just at dusk this evening, after a march over the worst and muddiest roads the "army" has encountered since it started last week on the march to Washington. Three of the hikers were missing when the main body reached here, but they marched into town late tonight. One of the trio, "Colonel" Ida Craft, was suffering intensely from badly blistered feet. The other two remained behind to assist her. So bad was the walking in stretches that when the "troops" reached Northeast for lunch, the hikers looked more like mud images than women.

To add to their troubles, the commissary automobile suddenly took fire on the road, but it was quickly extinguished, with but slight damage to either the car or its contents.

Judge Goff was born February 9, 1842, at Clarksville, W. Va. He was a member of the Northwestern Virginia academy, Clarksville, Georgetown, college, Washington, D. C., and the University of the City of New York. He entered the Union Army in the Civil war at the age of 19, leaving Georgetown college to enroll as a private in Company 1, Third Maryland Volunteer Infantry. He was mustered out in 1865 as a major.

Judge Goff was admitted to the bar in 1866. Since that time he has served in the West Virginia legislature, and in the United States Congress, and as chosen secretary of the navy by President Hayes in 1881. He was elected governor of West Virginia in 1885, but the election was contested, and A. B. Fleming, Mr. Goff's Democratic opponent, was declared elected by the legislature. After holding various judicial offices, Mr. Goff was appointed United States circuit judge in 1892 for the district of West Virginia, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina, and in January of last year was promoted to judge of the United States circuit court of appeals.

ELEVEN NEW MEMBERS OF PHI BETA KAPPA SOCIETY

At a meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa society, Thursday, nine undergraduate members from the senior class and two from the junior class were elected to membership as follows: Seniors—Miss Myrtle King, Miss Mary Fubow, Miss Eloise Shellabarger, Miss Dorothy Stott, Miss Leona Stuber, Miss Lorena Wolchen, Charles Carson, Thomas Lynen, Jr., and Arnold Rowbottom. Juniors—Everett Jackson and Frederick Storke.

The Phi Beta Kappa is a scholarship fraternity organized in 1776 at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. It is first a national and then a local society with chapters of scholars at Harvard and Yale in 1779, and at Dartmouth in 1787. During the Revolutionary war the original chapter ceased to exist temporarily because of the invasion of Virginia by the British, and it was not revived until 1819. Years later the purposes and views of the society broadened into the larger ambition of a union of scholars, until today the organization stands primarily for scholarship. A charter of Phi Beta Kappa was granted Colorado college in September, 1904.

The preferential system provides for separate columns on the ballots, in which voters shall mark their first, second and third choices for each office. If any candidate receives a majority of all votes cast for first choice, for that office, he is elected. If not, the first and second choice ballots for each candidate are totaled, and the one with the highest total wins, provided he has a majority. If no majority still is reached, the first, second and third choice ballots for each candidate are counted, and the highest total wins, even if he has no majority. Thus the candidate wanted by the most people is certain of election. The preferential system is in use at Grand Junction and has given general satisfaction.

Voters Lose Interest. Experience in Colorado Springs, as well as in other cities, has shown that the people as a whole have little interest after the first election, or is too much absorbed for many of them by the polls so soon again, and thus the will of the electors is not expressed as fully as if the first election were final.

The proposed system also would be away with partisanship to a great extent. At present, for instance, a defeated man at the first election can gather his friends and throw his strength at the second election to overthrow the two leading candidates. Similarly, if they are running closely, the will of the voters need not necessarily be expressed in the second election. It could easily be a "straw vote" between the faction of the defeated candidate and any one of the two best men.

VICE MUST

would have blinked our eyes at the very existence of a vice problem, and would not have ventured a solution."

Tells of His Work.

In beginning his talk, Dr. Evans stated that he had some knowledge of the subject by virtue of the fact that he had served on the only municipally appointed and sustained vice commission in America. He told of how his work as health commissioner had made him acquainted with the prevalence of venereal diseases and of their relation to social questions.

"My profession," he said, "has not in the past been active in participating in public meetings. In 1922 Lady Montagu returned to England from Turkey, bringing the first knowledge of inoculation for smallpox. She wished to discover the best means for disseminating this information among the people. She was asked why she did not give it to the doctors. I couldn't find a doctor, she replied, 'so virtuous as to assist in destroying a disease from which so much revenue is derived.'"

"But this, certainly, has not been the medical point of view for at least 100 years. In the past we have been concerned almost entirely with particular individuals. But in recent years the medical profession has taken up social work. I need only call attention to the work of Dr. Wiley and others. The subject matter of what we have to give out is not new, in most cases; it is only that we are finding new ways for translating professional knowledge into the language of the man of the street. We are making medical knowledge available to all."

"Education, then, is one characteristic of the new movement in medicine. Another characteristic is frankness. We recognize things as they are, and attempt their solution. We are getting back to the fact that infinitely the most important problem of any man is that man's neighbor. Paracelsus, first turned the attention of the world from metals to men, to make oneself and one's neighbor healthy. He said, one must make a man and his neighbor well and healthy."

Vice Problem in Chicago.

Coming then to the vice problem, Dr. Evans said the vice commission found these facts in Chicago. From 5,000 to 15,000 prostitutes. A cost to the city annually for vice of $150,000. A relation between vice and venereal diseases and the vice district.

"I went into this work," he said, "rather predisposed in favor of segregation. I didn't realize it was not possible to segregate venereal diseases as it is smallpox, for instance. We can get hold of only a small minority of those who are suffering from venereal diseases. I think most of the commission favored segregation. But we soon became unanimously opposed to segregation, for we found it did not segregate."

"We found that in the segregated district near Twenty-second street there were not so many women as in the residence district along Cottage Grove avenue. We found also that segregation does not regulate. The whole business is illegal; at best it is only tolerated. And out of such a combination grows the exercise of absolute power over these women by men of low principles, who act from bad motives."

"We found that medical inspection, the great reason for segregation, doesn't get results. Even honest examination is so superficial that a physician's certificate can't guarantee safety, and the false security thus engendered only spreads contagion rather than controls it."

Many Causes Found.

"We learned that women are driven into lives of shame from a multiplicity of causes. Sometimes it is economic; they cannot support themselves on the low wages paid them, and they covet the pretty clothes they see other women wearing. Sentiment we found is a relatively small cause of prostitution. Age is one of the great causes of vice. We do not care properly for the young people of either sex. Vice is supposed largely by boys. The women are recruited largely from girls in their teens. If we can carry the women safely to the age of 21 years free of them will go astray. After that age they can reason, and but few of them will deliberately choose a life that leads so immediately and directly to ruin."

"The commission reached certain conclusions. First, that the proper control of venereal diseases requires the removal of the social side of the business. Second, that the young people of either sex are controlled by other forces. Third, that the commission should be reorganized. It must be made representative, and records must be kept, not so much against the individual as against the disease. Those infected must be cared for in hospitals. Information concerning the diseases must be spread abroad."

"Second, there must be no segregation. There are other reasons for this conclusion in addition to the ones I have previously given. There is a tendency to regard segregation as a cure, when in fact it isn't, even a quick cure. When the women are gathered together, they tend to solidify their ranks, and they become more and more defiant, with assignment houses, with politicians, and become far more of a unit in resisting control than if they are scattered about the city."

Constant Repression Needed.

"Third, there must be constant and constant repression of prostitution."

WHITE HOUSE HOUSEKEEPER WILL RETAIN HER POSITION

Mrs. Taft

Mrs. Jeffrey, the White house housekeeper, spent a day with Mrs. Woodrow Wilson recently at Princeton, and discussed the management of the official menage. Mrs. Wilson prevailed on Mrs. Jeffrey to retain her position during the next administration.

with absolute annihilation as the ultimate ideal. No community can wholly eradicate the evil, but it can progress towards that end. A morals court should be established, where these women may be treated with regard for their individual needs, as are children in the juvenile courts. A morals commission should be appointed, to work out, gradually but surely, a solution of this great question.

"Vergil, the founder of modern astronomy, grew rich and lazy when appointed court physician. Then for a fault, he was exiled to the holy land. But he did not go to Jerico; he returned to his work; he found that his holy land lay in working for the betterment of mankind. And that is the third great advance of medicine: First, publicity of the fact; second, study of the facts; then the holy land, the work done for the betterment of mankind."

In answer to a question Dr. Evans said the vice commission could not agree whether or not sex hygiene should be studied in schools. It is his opinion, he said, that it must be eventually so taught. If it is left to the parents a majority of children will learn sexual truths from the streets. There are few teachers competent to teach sex hygiene at present, however.

David Starr Jordan, the first thing to do is to teach the teachers in normal schools; then to teach sex hygiene in colleges, then in high schools, lastly in the grades.

Dunkley, F. Carpenter called attention to the rooming house problem in Colorado Springs, and wanted to know how it could be handled, and how far the police might be depended upon to enforce the law.

"The assignment house problem is not so important as the segregated district problem," answered Dr. Evans. "The latter is far better advertised than the former can ever be. The rooming house evil can be dealt with only through constant and persistent repression."

Police Surprisingly Honest.

"As to the police, the individuals are surprisingly honest. I have found, in view of my temptations to which they are exposed. The whole thing, so far as the police are concerned, lies in securing a chief who has proper determination and conscience, and who is free from all entangling alliances. If there is such a chief, the individual policeman will come pretty nearly doing his duty."

"The remedy for assignment houses is publicity. Organize a vigilance committee, if necessary, to help the police. The Rockefeller institute will help, if you need more money than you can raise."

"What effect," Dr. Evans was asked, "will the driving out of prostitutes have upon the young women of the community? Will they be safe?"

"There is nothing to the argument that the red light protects virtuous women," was the reply. "The man who goes to a house of prostitution doesn't find anything there to elevate his thoughts. He doesn't learn anything of civility. The spirit of civility is needed for the preservation of society, but this spirit will surely come through other channels than the house of prostitution. There is absolutely nothing there that makes for the greater safety of innocent women."

In conclusion Dr. Evans declared a single standard of morals will eventually come, and that no one can say what proportion of women fall through economic causes, what through dances halls, or from other causes.

Pres. Taft Given Scarf Pin, Mrs. Taft a Necklace

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—As a token of their esteem, prominent society women of the national capital tonight presented President Taft with a rare pearl scarf pin and Mrs. Taft with a diamond necklace of pure white stones. The gifts, which were in the nature of farewell remembrances to the Tafts, were from a circle of close friends they have made during their long residence in Washington.

The presentation was an informal affair, and took place in the red room at the White house. Miss Mabel T. Boardman of the American Red Cross headed the committee of ladies who made the presentation.

Both the president and Mrs. Taft were deeply touched by the spirit which prompted their friends in presenting the gifts and expressed their heartfelt appreciation.

Vincent Astor Sued for $25,000 Damages

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 21.—Charles E. Palmer of Tarrytown has brought suit in the supreme court for $25,000 damages against William Vincent Astor, son of the late John Jacob Astor, for injuries received September 30, 1910, at Irvington. According to Palmer, Vincent Astor was driving an automobile at a mile a minute along Broadway, in Irvington, when, in turning out to pass a car, the machine crashed into the motor-cycle Palmer was driving. Palmer was thrown 30 feet, he alleged, and his left leg and two ribs were broken.

Suit was originally brought against John Jacob Astor, as Vincent was under age. Now that the son has attained his majority, the suit is directed against him. The case came into court today, when counsel for Astor asked for a bill of particulars.

MUST RESTORE PEACE

Puebla. There is no confirmation of the report, but it is generally believed to be true. Axcueta was arrested at Apisaco, while fleeing from the capital and was taken to Puebla.

General Felipe Angeles, former commander of the army operating at Cuernavaca, and General Joaquin Pantoja, former commander of the federal forces at Vera Cruz, are to be subjected to an inquiry by the military court. General Beltran will be tried for the part he played in attacking Vera Cruz last year at the time of the ill-starred uprising fomented there by General Diaz.

He is accused of misuse of the white flag in capturing Vera Cruz and making a prisoner of General Diaz, who later was brought to the capital and remained incarcerated until the recent revolt which ended in the downfall of Madero.

It was charged at the time that Diaz's revolt failed, Diaz believed that Beltran would join him. Beltran and his men, under a flag of truce, were permitted to enter Vera Cruz, and Diaz was seized by the federal commander and placed in prison.

General Angeles will be tried for failure to obey an order of General Huerta to report to the palace with his forces on the last day of the recent fighting in the city. General Huerta intended to get Angeles to the palace as a part of the plan for ending the battle. Angeles is confined in the same room in the palace with Ex-President Madero.

Senora Madero, wife of the ex-president, and Senora Suarez, wife of the ex-vice president today, for the first time since their husbands were arrested, were permitted to visit them in the palace. The visits lasted one hour and were private. When the women left the palace they appeared to be deeply apprehensive as to the fate of their husbands.

Leaders Are Invited.

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 21.—Another play for pacification of the northern revolutionists was made today. General Felix Diaz invited two rebel representatives to hurry to Mexico City. This is understood to be in addition to the two northern rebels appointed on Huerta's cabinet, neither of whom have accepted. Who the delegates will be is not decided. The message from Diaz was sent originally to Colonel Pascual Groen, Sr., at Nuevo Laredo, who transmitted it here to Ricardo Gomez Robelo, the younger Orozco's personal agent.

Rebels and federalists in northern Mexico remain in the same position as before the Mexico City revolt. Rebel agents here, speaking for the missing Orozco and General Salazar, the acting commander-in-chief, insist that the northern revolution will avail the action of those in power at Mexico City. Their demands regarding land grants are being formulated for presentation by the delegates to the national capital.

Army Is Denounced.

At Juarez today placards denouncing the army were posted on the principal streets, only to be torn down by police and soldiers. They charged the army with treachery to the country, embodied in an appeal against the army. The volunteer troops are charged by the placards with the authorship of the posters, increasing the already great ill feeling between the two factions.

ENOUGH POISON FOUND IN SWOPE'S LIVER TO HAVE CAUSED HIS DEATH

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 21.—Enough poison was found in Colonel Swope's liver to have caused death, according to the testimony of Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, dean of the medical school in the University of Michigan, who was placed on the stand by the state today in the Hyde murder trial. He testified that an analysis of Colonel Swope's liver showed 52-66 of a grain of strychnine.

"How much strychnine constitutes a deadly dose?" asked Senator Read of counsel for the state.

"One-half, or 33-66 of one grain," the witness responded.

The state will finish its case in the Hyde trial next Monday, it was announced today. Only six more witnesses for the prosecution are to be heard.

GENERAL PORFIRIO DIAZ

Felix Diaz was among the callers and interested spectators at the official reception of the government commissions. His only participation, however, was that of a private citizen, a role he has assumed. He is not a politician. Already he and close friends have set in motion the machinery and the party work for his political campaign, which, it is hoped by the new administration, will be finished in a short time.

There is no good reason to believe, however, that President Huerta will find the task of pacification simple or particularly short. The axe inspired by cannon shells will act as a repellent agent in and about the capital, but many with whom rebellion has become more or less a profession, will probably continue the strife. Disputing reports also continue to arrive regarding the attitude of disgruntled governors and political leaders in many parts of the republic.

Gen. Pascual Orozco, Jr., is expected to arrive soon and espouse the cause of the new administration, but it is considered not improbable that General Swope, perhaps the second strongest man in the revolt, will refuse to support any government having the appearance of the old regime. He represents the most radical element of the northern rebels.

Organize Opposition.

The most concerted action undoubtedly is that centering about Governor Carranza in the state of Coahuila, where two brothers of the deposed president are heading a force with the purpose of working the government from Huerta and avenging the death of their other brother, Gustavo. As a nucleus of their army, they have a force of irregulars, and are said to be able to augment this number with considerable numbers of other recruits. In the south, it is not improbable that Castillo Brito, the governor of Campeche, will support an anti-government movement.

The state for which both sides will play is the support of Gen. Emilio Salazar, who controls local army men to be loyal. The government claims that Salazar has expressed a willingness to cease fighting, asking only for a change in the governor of the state of Yucatan.

In the capital, Felix Diaz continues the popular hero. The playing of the "Felix Diaz March" in the restaurants is still the signal for applause. Provisional President Huerta's peace program, as outlined to the newspapermen, if carried out, means merciless repression, if repression should be necessary. In effect, it is promised to use the iron hand policy employed so effectively by Porfirio Diaz when he was president. It is regarded by most people as certain to be needed, for the skeptical express doubt as to its efficacy, at least for a long time.

While an emissary had been sent to Coahuila to confer with Governor Carranza, most persons believe that the influence of Madero's brothers in that district will make peace without a struggle impossible.

Mrs. Pankhurst Is Hissed by Mixed London Audience

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette who has declared that she was responsible for the dynamite explosion which recently wrecked the home in Surrey of David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, met with a mixed reception at a meeting held in the Chelsea town hall under the auspices of the Women's Social and Political union.

When Mrs. Pankhurst appeared on the platform she was greeted with groans, hisses, yells and cheers, and only a large force of police in the hall prevented the hostile section of the audience from attacking her. When she left the hall, Mrs. Pankhurst twitted the authorities for being afraid to take advantage of her assumption of responsibility for blowing up Mr. Lloyd-George's house and send her to jail. She declared that short of taking human life, the militant suffragettes intended to do everything possible to settle once and for all the political status of the women of this country.

G. O. P. IS UNDECIDED ABOUT CONVENTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Until a majority of the members of the Republican national committee express desire for a national convention of the party to revise rules and change the basis of the southern representation, Chairman Charles D. Hille will not issue a call for a meeting of the committee to consider the subject. This is understood to be the attitude of the national chairman, as expressed to Republican leaders who have been discussing the projected convention.

Few members of the national committee have definitely committed themselves to the convention plan thus far, but it has become the subject of general discussion among Republican leaders in congress and it is believed the support gained for the plan will result in a general request for a national committee meeting to consider methods of bringing the Republicans of all states together. Should Chairman Hille decide to call the committee meeting, it probably will be held early in the spring, but that steps can be taken to have a Republican national convention assemble by September if desired.

DOWAGER EMPRESS OF CHINA IS DEAD

PEKING, Feb. 22 (Saturday).—Ye He La, dowager empress of China, died at 2:30 o'clock this morning. She was the widow of Emperor Kwangsu, who died November 15, 1908.

The empress had been ill only a few days. The actual cause of her death is unknown, but it is said the symptoms of her ailment resembled appendicitis. She was attended only by a Chinese doctor.

The former imperial family was about to remove to the inner portion of the "Forbidden city" in order to make room for the government in the eastern portion.

CENTRAL STATES

with the outside world today. Wires in every direction within a radius of 50 miles of the city went down under their loads of snow. Most railroads were without wires south of Chicago, and only a few had one or more.

Brokers were without wires all day, and press and other telegraphic business was greatly congested.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 21.—A heavy snow is raging throughout the state today. Reports from all sections indicate the storm has been general since early this morning and that it shows signs of continuing several hours. Telegraph and telephone wires are demoralized, and in Des Moines and the larger cities street car traffic is seriously impeded. Railroad trains were late on nearly all lines entering Des Moines today.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 21.—Up to noon all Kansas was covered with from two to seven inches of snow and the snow was still falling. Not since a year ago has there been as heavy and as general a snow as the present one. It started shortly after noon yesterday and continued until this morning. Then a storm broke and with every indication of continuing throughout the day.

According to the railroad reports there is five to seven inches of snow throughout eastern Kansas. Four and five inches through central Kansas and two to six inches through the western part of the state. In southern Kansas the snow is lighter and mixed with rain.

The snow is very wet and heavy and there is no wind to dry it. The railroads are having some trouble because of the inability of the trainmen to see ahead, but the storm is not blocking any of the roads.

The railroad officials here are interested unusually in the weather reports as the snow means hundreds of thousands of dollars to them. Through northern and central Kansas the winter has been unusually dry, and reports of actual damage to the wheat have been coming in for several days. The snow came at just the right time, according to the railroad officials.

UTAH PASSES BILL TO AID MIDLAND TRAIL

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 21.—A bill to appropriate $50,000 to aid in the building of the proposed automobile highway from the Utah-Colo. line to Salt Lake City over the route known as the Midland Trail, was passed by the house today. The bill already has been passed by the senate.

BARELA-WYCOFF CASE IS FINISHED AT LAST

DENVER, Feb. 21.—Arguments were concluded in the Barela-Wycoff senatorial contest before the senate election committee late tonight.

While no indication of the character of the report has been given by members of the committee, it was stated that they are anxious to finish their work and will make their report to the senate early next week.

It is anticipated, however, that there will be three reports. A majority report, seating one of the contestants; a minority report, seating the other one; and another minority report recommending that both contestants be unseated.

Taft to Accompany Wilson.

President Taft and President-elect Wilson will pass into the capitol up the broad steps of the senate wing and will go, after the ceremonies in the senate chamber, through the central door of the capitol to the inaugural stand.

The entire arrangement of the capitol grounds will be policed on inauguration-day by the regular Washington police. The capitol police will be withdrawn into the capitol building for protective purposes. The doors of the capitol, to which admission may be had by special card only, are to be turned over, however, to strange doorkeepers, so that old friendships and official greetings may have nothing to do with breaking down the strict rules of the day.

Sergeant-at-Arms Cornelius is following the same method in handling the senate gallery for the ceremonies attendant to the inauguration of Vice-President-elect Marshall. Head ushers from the theaters of Washington have been engaged to handle the seating of guests, so that official pressure may not be exerted on the regular capitol employees.

Seating Capacity Limited.

With only 736 seats in the galleries, extreme methods are sometimes resorted to by those anxious to witness the spectacle in the senate chamber.

In front of the inaugural platform, flanked on the one side by the midshipmen from Annapolis, and on the other by the cadets from West Point, will be Major General Leonard Wood and his staff, guarding the space between Wilson and the camera rampart. As he begins his inaugural address, these guards will draw in toward the stand, so that the crowd behind may come within range of the president's voice.

After some difficulty, provision has been made to get President Wilson's personal guests, who will number nearly 200, off the inaugural stand, and up through the crowded streets to the White house, to the official review. Special stairways in the rear of the stands, and a fleet of motor cars will be used.

GOVERNOR WILSON ATTENDS

MUSICAL COMEDY SHOW

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—President-elect Wilson saw a Broadway musical comedy tonight and gave every evidence of heartily enjoying the performance. With William F. McCombs, Democratic national chairman, and Col. E. M. House, a close friend, Mr. Wilson occupied a box and laughed frequently at the jokes, many of which were political in character. Some of the songs, too, touched on things political, and one in which caricatures of Taft, Roosevelt, Wilson and Bryan were displayed, seemed particularly to amuse Mr. Wilson.

One of the comedians recited a quotation in what purported to be Latin, and when no one appeared to understand it, he translated the sentence as meaning: "You can elect a new president, but you cannot always be sure of an inaugural hall."

The band playing the "Star Spangled Banner" as a tribute to the president-elect, and when the audience discovered to whom it was directed, everybody rose and cheered.

Mr. Wilson arrived here this afternoon and planned to return to Princeton tomorrow.

MARSHALLS PREPARE TO START FOR WASHINGTON

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 21.—Vice President-elect and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall returned to their home today after spending a two-months' vacation in Arizona, visiting the parents of Mrs. Marshall. They will depart next Wednesday for Washington.

As soon as they arrived, the next vice-president started to work on his inaugural address, and Mrs. Marshall, donning a singhian apron and a dust cap, superintended the packing of the furniture.

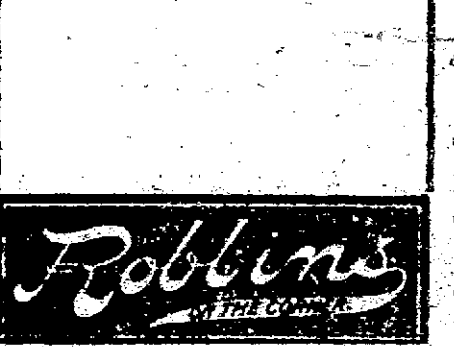

Mr. Marshall discussed freely the Mexican situation. He said from what he learned in the southwest he personally was opposed to intervention by the United States. He said he wished to emphasize that this was just his opinion as an individual.

Mrs. Marshall, whose attitude on the suffrage question has caused much discussion in Washington, declared today that she was not a suffragist.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 21.—More than one hundred Christians were massacred by Turkish troops yesterday in the village of Kenaminito, according to dispatches received by the Bulgarian government today. Similar massacres and other atrocities are reported throughout the Tchardja district, a large portion of which has been left unprotected by the partial withdrawal of the Bulgarian troops.

JUDGE TAKES HENWOOD CASE UNDER ADVISEMENT

DENVER, Feb. 21.—District Judge O. C. Butler tonight took under advisement the motion filed by Frank Harold Henwood, petitioning the court to dismiss the charge of murder at Philip von Phul, which has been lying dormant against Henwood since June 1, 1911.

The defense maintains that a prior one held in jail without bail, the charge against whom has not been tried within two terms of the criminal court, and who has not requested the delay in any manner, is entitled to liberty and absolution from the complaint.

The district attorney holds that Henwood's being held pending the determination of the charge of murder in the Campbell case is sufficient reason for the von Phul case not having been taken up.

DENVER, Feb. 21.—Judge Robert D. Lewis in the United States district court today overruled a demurrer to the indictments against Walter C. Cunningham and his wife, Marjorie Hamilton Cunningham, in which they are charged with fraudulent use of the mails in connection with the advertising and sale of anti-cancer and beauty treatments. Attorneys for the defendants argued that the bill of indictment was defective in that it failed to state the explicit offense on which the government based its prosecution.

PROTECT SHIPMASTERS AGAINST EXTORTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Protection for shipmasters against extortionate charges for coal and oil in the Panama canal zone is to be provided by the canal commission, which finally has outlined a policy for the regulation of private dealers and the prevention of monopoly.

Under the proposed plan the government will retain complete control of all the canal zone, with frontage and transportation by land and water across the isthmus and receive cargoes of coal and liquid fuel from private dealers at its own wharves, plantable then through its own agencies and store them subject to the demands of trade, the private dealers being at liberty to draw upon their stored coal and oil, subject to a moderate cost for handling.

This will make unnecessary the assignment of wharf privileges to any individual. The pumping of oil across the isthmus will be continued even after the canal is opened, having been found to be the most economical method of handling this fuel.

"TUBERCULOSIS RESORTS
SHOULD EXERCISE GREAT
PRECAUTION," DR. EVANS

"If proper precautions are taken for the safety of their own people, Colorado and Colorado Springs are justified in inviting tuberculosis to come here, but they are not justified if they do not take such precautions. History shows that where proper provision is not made to control the disease, the people of a district that is a tuberculosis resort may acquire the disease in time. It is for this reason of immense importance that measures such as the bill now before the Colorado legislature for the registration of tuberculosis should be enacted and vigorously enforced. Colorado Springs is one resort that has met this problem. Reports that do not advise proper precautionary measures inevitably suffer from their negligence."

This is the statement made in an interview yesterday by Dr. W. A. Evans, former commissioner of health of Chicago, who spoke before the Winter Night-club at the Antlers hotel last night on "The Vice Problem." Dr. Evans also said that in view of the interest in the tuberculosis problem, from the standpoint of this community the annual convention of the American Public Health Association, which is to be held here this summer, probably in August, is one of the most important gatherings that could come to this city.

The annual conventions of the American Public Health Association, according to Dr. Evans, usually draw an attendance of about 400. Nearly 80 per cent of this comes from the United States, although both Canada and Mexico, as a rule, send good-sized delegations. There are also representatives from Cuba, and all the Central American countries may send delegates if they wish. These last, however, send practically no delegates when the conventions are held in the United States.

The association is 50 years old. "A good deal of the record making in preventive medicine, especially in the old days of yellow fever, has been the work of this association."

The meeting will bring to this city many of the leading men in public health work on this continent. Its president is Dr. Rudolph Hering, sanitary engineer of New York city, and its secretary, Livingston Farrand, also is secretary of the National Tuberculosis society.

Dr. and Mrs. Evans arrived in this city yesterday. He was the guest of the local medical society yesterday afternoon at an informal luncheon at the Antlers hotel.

OLDEST CATHOLIC
PRELATE IN THIS COUNTRY IS DEAD

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 21.—Bishop John Joseph Hogan of the diocese of western Missouri, the oldest Catholic prelate in this country, born in years and point of service, died of pneumonia at the episcopal residence here today. For 44 years he had been a bishop.

Bishop Hogan acquired a cold 10 days ago which immediately developed into pneumonia. He said at that time: "I will never get over this. My body has grown old in my work and will not withstand this illness."

Bishop Hogan was born in County Limerick, Ireland, in 1828. At the age of 18 he came to the United States and entered a theological seminary in St. Louis, where he was ordained a priest five years later.

In 1857, the church called for an active missionary to open up the wilds of northwest Missouri. Mounted upon his sturdy pony, John the Baptist, Father Hogan plunged into the wastes of that section of the state, teaching his religion.

The death of Bishop Hogan leaves Cardinal Gibbons the only survivor in the American hierarchy of the convocation held in the Vatican in Rome in 1899.

ARE FAR ADVANCED

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—Two years to a day before the official date of opening of the Panama-Pacific International exposition, Charles F. Moore, U. S. president, issued a statement today to show that preparations already are further along than was planned, that 38 foreign nations have accepted the invitation of the United States to participate and that the exposition will be ready before the day set.

Already the service building stands complete at the north center of the site, and work on the machinery building, the largest single structure, has been begun. A tremendous amount of underground work, including the laying of water and drainage conduits, has been completed, and that the exposition may appear fully finished, thousands of rose bushes and vines are being grown under glass in the exposition greenhouses, to be transplanted to the various building sites as the buildings are completed.

A tremendous advantage to exhibitors, Mr. Moore points out, lies in the exposition site at the bay edge, which will make possible the unloading of exhibits direct from ships into the exposition grounds.

tion and to forward the movement for the development of the state. It was noticeable that the Gallup attack, to which the guests had listened, seemed to have put more of them in an apologetic and defensive attitude.

So far as having any effect upon existing legislation the joint session was a complete fizzle, although it accomplished at least the unprecedented result of lining up a large number of prominent business men of Denver in favor of the amendment, now pending in the state development board, which is a precedent to the more selfish policies of the capital city. The best and most effective speech was made by Herbert Benson, the public utility expert, whom Gallup had designated as "the imported messiah from the billboards of the Hudson," in which he urged the members to do everything possible to bring money and people into the state and nothing to drive people and capital out of it.

Two "Full Crew" Bills.

In the senate this morning the discussion hinged chiefly upon the "full crew" bill, which requires that all freight trains of more than 25 cars shall be manned with a crew of three brakemen. Possibly it would be nearer the truth to say that this is what the bill purports to require, for there is some doubt as to what the bill really means and whether it would have any force. In the course of discussion, it developed that there is another senate "full crew" bill, which is approved by the railroad employees of the state. The other bill relates to passenger as well as to freight trains and to trains of all lengths, and that bill and not senate bill No. 25 is what the railroad employees want.

Senator Williams offered an amendment substituting 40 instead of 25 as the measure of the minimum train requiring the three brakemen. In the course of the discussion an animated colloquy arose between Senator Adams and Senator Bellesfield with regard to the meaning and authority of the Democratic pledges. Senator Bellesfield declared that this senate bill No. 25 is a platform measure and as such demands the support of all Democrats. Senator Adams, who approved the Williams amendment, denied the right of a senator or a committee to present a bill and to declare that it embodied the principle of the platform so that every Democrat was under obligations to support it without amendment. He said that he and the Pueblo senator had an understanding to support platform pledges, but denied that this agreement extended to other matters. Senator Tierney inquired specifically whether the agreement did not extend to numerous other bills, including the one establishing Alamosa county, and when Senator Adams said that it did not, Tierney remarked that the course of the majority in regard to those bills constituted the most wonderful example of unpromised team work he had ever witnessed. Senators Cornforth and William Robinson participated in the discussion, both declaring that they favored a full crew law, but were opposed to unreasonable restrictions. They did not believe that senate bill No. 25 represents the real wishes of the railroad men of the state. The bill went over without final action.

The house has adopted a resolution which will make evening sessions the rule beginning with next week. The committee on rules is instructed to prepare a special calendar of 65 bills, one bill being designated by each member of the house. The order of precedence is to be established by lot, and the house will order as many evening sessions during each week as it may desire. Thus an opportunity will be given to each member to forward one particular bill in which he is especially interested, an opportunity that may not be given in the general calendar.

Superintendent of Matteawan Institution Says He Was Offered $20,000

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 21.—Testifying before Governor Surcou's committee of inquiry today, Dr. John W. Russell, superintendent of Matteawan hospital, said he was offered $20,000 by a lawyer a few weeks ago if he would agree to release Harry K. Thaw. Dr. Russell said he refused. He could not recall the lawyer's name, but said the offer was made in a New York hotel. Secretary Clark, when sworn today, denied having told either Dr. Russell or Dr. May that the governor wanted Thaw released. His said, however, that he had visited Dr. Russell while investigating a report that the latter had received $25,000 to free Thaw.

While Dr. Russell's memory was hazy concerning the identity of the lawyer who offered him the bribe during the latter part of 1912, he denied any reason for wishing to conceal the man's name, and thought he could furnish it later.

The witness also told of a conversation he had with Mr. Hoffman of Poughkeepsie, Mr. Thaw's private detective, in which he said he had been advised he had been called to Albany on the Thaw matter and that the governor wanted Thaw out.

The superintendent added that even if he had received a written order from the governor to release Thaw he would not have done so.

Dr. Russell, when asked pointblank whether he considered Thaw insane, declined to answer. Dr. May later testified that Dr. Russell had expressed the opinion to him that Thaw was "not a paranoiac, but was suffering from a form of mental unsoundness which is spoken of as constitutional inferiority."

Clark likewise declared Dr. Russell had remarked to him that Thaw was "perfectly sane."

The house has passed house bill 15 on third reading which does away with the severely punitive feature of the direct primary law. This is one law that has universal approval and it is assured of passage through the senate.

Two of the bills which had been reported adversely by the house committee have been sent back to the committee for reconsideration. These relate to the proposed counties of Paradox and Divide. It is not believed that there is a chance of favorable action upon these bills, but apparently it is judged inadvisable to kill them thus early in the session.

Sheeley has been under conviction since June last, and with allowance for good conduct has already served the minimum term of his sentence.

Senator Hayden, one of the minority senators, sprung a surprise upon the senate this morning when he introduced a resolution pledging the hold-over senators to vote for the "people's choice" for United States senator in 1918. Hayden says he expects the resolution to pass unanimously, and every senator who questioned upon the subject declared that he is in favor of it. At the same time there is some interest to know what Hayden really means by it. The resolution goes over a day under the rules and it will be surprising if some of the senators do not want to take longer to think it over. It looks harmless enough, but there is a suspicion that the thing is loaded, somehow.

The final vote on the Hecker bill and liability bill has been postponed until next Wednesday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—"Case dismissed," was the verdict today in the case of Vivian Martin Lyons, formerly of Denver, who shot Robert J. Widney of Los Angeles on December 4, 1912.

At the same time, I caution the defendant not to keep firearms in her bosom, because it might chance again that she would shoot a man accidentally, who would not be so kind to her as Widney."

Widney testified yesterday that he was wounded by the accidental discharge of the revolver which Mrs. Lyons had asked him to unload. He said that there was the best of feelings between them and that he had never made any statement to anyone that the shooting was other than accidental.

Superintendent of Matteawan Institution Says He Was Offered $20,000

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 21.—Testifying before Governor Surcou's committee of inquiry today, Dr. John W. Russell, superintendent of Matteawan hospital, said he was offered $20,000 by a lawyer a few weeks ago if he would agree to release Harry K. Thaw. Dr. Russell said he refused. He could not recall the lawyer's name, but said the offer was made in a New York hotel. Secretary Clark, when sworn today, denied having told either Dr. Russell or Dr. May that the governor wanted Thaw released. His said, however, that he had visited Dr. Russell while investigating a report that the latter had received $25,000 to free Thaw.

While Dr. Russell's memory was hazy concerning the identity of the lawyer who offered him the bribe during the latter part of 1912, he denied any reason for wishing to conceal the man's name, and thought he could furnish it later.

The witness also told of a conversation he had with Mr. Hoffman of Poughkeepsie, Mr. Thaw's private detective, in which he said he had been advised he had been called to Albany on the Thaw matter and that the governor wanted Thaw out.

The superintendent added that even if he had received a written order from the governor to release Thaw he would not have done so.

Dr. Russell, when asked pointblank whether he considered Thaw insane, declined to answer. Dr. May later testified that Dr. Russell had expressed the opinion to him that Thaw was "not a paranoiac, but was suffering from a form of mental unsoundness which is spoken of as constitutional inferiority."

Clark likewise declared Dr. Russell had remarked to him that Thaw was "perfectly sane."

The house has passed house bill 15 on third reading which does away with the severely punitive feature of the direct primary law. This is one law that has universal approval and it is assured of passage through the senate.

Two of the bills which had been reported adversely by the house committee have been sent back to the committee for reconsideration. These relate to the proposed counties of Paradox and Divide. It is not believed that there is a chance of favorable action upon these bills, but apparently it is judged inadvisable to kill them thus early in the session.

AMMONS COMMUTES SENTENCE.

Governor Ammons today commuted the sentence of Charles G. Sheeley, a prominent contractor, who received a sentence of one to two years in connection with the bribery cases at Greeley. Sheeley has been under conviction since June last, and with allowance for good conduct has already served the minimum term of his sentence.

Senator Hayden, one of the minority senators, sprung a surprise upon the senate this morning when he introduced a resolution pledging the hold-over senators to vote for the "people's choice" for United States senator in 1918. Hayden says he expects the resolution to pass unanimously, and every senator who questioned upon the subject declared that he is in favor of it. At the same time there is some interest to know what Hayden really means by it. The resolution goes over a day under the rules and it will be surprising if some of the senators do not want to take longer to think it over. It looks harmless enough, but there is a suspicion that the thing is loaded, somehow.

The final vote on the Hecker bill and liability bill has been postponed until next Wednesday.

CHARGE SHOOTING WIDNEY

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—"Case dismissed," was the verdict today in the case of Vivian Martin Lyons, formerly of Denver, who shot Robert J. Widney of Los Angeles on December 4, 1912.

"I am forced to take this action," explained Judge Weller, "because of the refusal of the man injured to prosecute. At the same time, I caution the defendant not to keep firearms in her bosom, because it might chance again that she would shoot a man accidentally, who would not be so kind to her as Widney."

Widney testified yesterday that he was wounded by the accidental discharge of the revolver which Mrs. Lyons had asked him to unload. He said that there was the best of feelings between them and that he had never made any statement to anyone that the shooting was other than accidental.

SARAH PADDEN

In "Kindling," at the Grand Opera House, Monday, February 24. Matinee and Night.

Father Dorney had intended that Miss Padden should become a teacher in his parochial school. To that end he arranged for her to attend a school of elocution. Later, at the suggestion of the mother superior, he went to see Will J. Davis, manager of the Illinois theater in Chicago, and beloved by the theatrical profession as "Uncle Will," with the idea that Mr. Davis might obtain a small engagement for Miss Padden in some recognized dramatic company. It was believed that practical experience would be of value in her work as a teacher. Mr. Davis found employment for the girl in the company of Otis Skinner. Three years later, because of the illness of Laura Hope Creaves, Miss Padden became Mr. Skinner's leading woman in the play "The Honor of the Family." Her work here attracted the attention of the late sulted to Maggie Schultz. More than that, she loves the part, an essential requisite for really convincing work. At the conclusion of the present tour, Miss Padden will go to Australia, appearing in a repertoire of three plays, "The Third Degree," "Kindling," and "The Third Degree." The remaining play for the antipodes has not been decided upon, but it is more than likely will be "Merely Mary Ann," the appealing Zane Grey drama in which Eleanor Reison achieved considerable success.

Theater patrons find "Kindling" so very elemental and so very human that its appeal is irresistible. It is easy to suffer and plan with Helene Schultz and his wife, Maggie. Maggie follows the suggestion given her by all the people with whom she comes in contact and steers in order that her baby may be born in the free air of the great west. She almost falls into the clutches of the law, but the fact that she finally realizes her great hope gives a particularly pleasant ending to the story. Sarah Padden's emotional power has ample range in the role of Maggie, and she has scored a genuine triumph in the part. She will be supported by William Macaulay, Alice Ringling and an excellent cast.

PREFERENTIAL VOTING

THE Grand Junction charter, adopted six months after Colorado Springs adopted its charter, contains an election provision which has since been shown to be a marked improvement over our own system. This is the preferential method of voting, and it has since been adopted in Pueblo and in Spokane, Wash.

Under the preferential system there is only one election, a distinct advantage in itself, both in cost to the city and in convenience to the public. Names of candidates appear on the ballot without party designation, as under the present plan, but separate columns are provided in which the voter expresses his first, second and other choices for each office, instead of only one.

If any one candidate obtains a majority of the votes cast for that office he is thereby elected. If no candidate receives a majority of first-choice ballots, the first and second choice ballots of each candidate are added, and the one with the highest vote wins provided he has a majority. But if there is still no majority, the figures in all three columns are added, first, second and other choices, and the candidate with the highest vote wins.

The voter can cast only one first choice and one second choice, but in the third column, headed "Other Choices," he can vote for more than one. Of course only one choice can be counted for any one candidate.

Under this system it is certain that the winner will have a majority of the voters back of him, unless the list of nominees contains no one who can command a majority. In that case it affords the next best thing, a plurality.

Another important advantage is the saving of expense incident to dispensing with the second election and registration. Two years ago this amounted to $1,493, of which $400 was for registration, $290 for rent of polling places, $580 for pay of judges and clerks, and the remainder for printing of ballots and incidentals. Moreover it is a distinct convenience to the public to settle the whole contest by one election.

Another innovation which might well be adopted here is the election of each of the four councilmen to a designated commissionership. Under the Charter the Mayor is Commissioner of Water and Waterworks, but the other four members are assigned to their respective positions by vote of the Council. Under the Grand Junction plan each candidate for the Council runs for a certain commissionership. Thus the people know what particular job each man is to fill, and can vote more intelligently, for they express their own convictions as to his fitness for the place. For example, a voter may be willing to vote for a certain man for Commissioner of Public Works, for which he is fitted, but unwilling to vote simply for his election to the Council, where he may be assigned to some position for which he is unfit.

Today petitions are to be circulated asking the submission, at the coming election, of an amendment to the Charter, embodying these two changes, preferential voting, and election to a specific office. The amendment ought to be carried.

SUPERINTENDENT COLE

THE action of the Board of Education in appointing Superintendent Cole for another term of three years will be generally approved by the community, and especially by those who are most familiar with the conduct of the public schools. Mr. Cole came to Colorado Springs three years ago when the school system was badly disorganized, and has since effected changes in methods which have greatly increased its efficiency. Of even greater importance, perhaps, is the better esprit de corps resulting from his tactful dealings with the school authorities, the teachers and the public.

Since coming here Mr. Cole has been offered several better positions in the East, including the superintendency at Providence, R. I. His departure at this time, just as the fruits of his past efforts are being realized, unquestionably would have impaired the effective working of the school system, for the present at least. The Board has acted wisely in making it possible for him to continue this excellent work.

PORK

APROPOS of the passage of the biennial pork barrel bill, otherwise known as the Public Buildings' bill, Congressman Fitzgerald of New York, a member of the committee which drafted it, tells this story. One of the committee was approached by a Western congressman.

"What is your home town?" asked the public buildings man.

"Blanktown," replied the member.

"But you haven't an item in this bill," replied the public buildings man.

"No, we don't need anything in our town," said the other.

"It can't be that you are going to vote against the bill?"

"You bet."

"Good God, ain't there something we can do for you?"

Under the terms of this bill public buildings costing from $20,000 to $100,000 are presented to the following towns, scattered around the country: Harrisonburg, Eminence, Martins Ferry, Gallipolis, Middletown, Alliance, Sidney, Logan, Tarentum, Paintsville, Pikesville, Lumberton, Kinston, Tarboro, Rocky Mount and Van Wert.

These names are taken at random from a long list quite long, in fact, for the pork aggregates just $25,643,800. Three-fourths of the towns are mere whistling stations which nobody outside their precincts ever heard of. But the answer is that they are represented by hustling congressmen whose idea of patriotic public service is to make themselves solid with their constituents by presenting each hamlet with a costly postoffice building.

WHAT WILL HE DO WITH IT?

IT IS reported that young Vincent Astor is displaying unexpected symptoms of an ambition to be a really useful man. It will be remembered that on the recent occasion of Mr. Astor's twenty-first birthday he came into possession of a few scores of millions of dollars left by his late father, who went down with the Titanic. Young Vincent is of the fifth generation of millionaire Astors, and for a century and a quarter the family has been notable for its rigid adherence to the policy of keeping the fortune intact. With rare exceptions the Astors have given nothing to charity, nothing for the public welfare in short, they have in no way recognized what is now generally accepted as the obligation of the rich man to society.

Now it is reported that Mr. Astor is displaying an active interest in the administration of his estate along lines more conducive to the welfare of his fellow man, and especially to his tenants, who are numbered by the thousands, for he is the largest land owner in New York. In short, there are indications that he will take his place with such enlightened millionaires as Mrs. Russell Sage, the former Helen Gould, Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Carnegie. It is a wholesome tendency, and we hope indicates a permanent departure from the Astor tradition.

TRIBUTE OF AN EXPERT.

From the New York Tribune.
Mr. Bryce's eulogy of the constitution of the United States would under any circumstances be noteworthy. It comes from a man who has no superior in the world, and has had none in our generation, as a careful student and discriminating critic of governmental affairs. His knowledge of the American system is encyclopedic, and his attitude toward it is sufficiently detached to be impartial and judicious in a convincing degree. So far as he has predilections for any constitutional system, they are doubtless for that of Great Britain, under which he has served as a legislator and administrator for many years.

A SAME NEW YEARS EVE.

From the New York Evening Post.
It was a wave of sanity that put an end to the old-fashioned Fourth of July, and now a few adventurous spirits have been so emboldened by the response of the public to the appeal to act like sensible men and women that they are suggesting a dignified celebration of New Years eve. Doubtless they will be denounced for their pains as meddlers with the sacred right of the individual to render himself obnoxious to his fellows. To make things still more ridiculous, it is the time-honored way of moving one's realization of the new opportunities that the turning of the last leaf on the old calendar brings into view. Nevertheless, there is something inviting in the plan to substitute music for noise as a method of speeding the passing and welcoming the coming year. If ever we see the Broadway throngs singing instead of yelling at the midnight that ushers in a new twelvemonth, we shall even hope for an approach to a sane election night.

This latter circumstance makes his tribute to our constitution most noteworthy. For, instead of drawing comparisons between the two systems to the advantage of his own, he emphasized the superiority of ours. There is, it is true, no direct comparison. But when he bade his hearers to "look at other popular governments and see how much they have suffered from the want of similar safeguards to those provided in our written constitution, the inference was inevitable that he had in mind the conflicts over constitutional issues which have in late years so often and so greatly convulsed British politics.

Now, it should occur to those who have of late been so glibly clamoring for quick and easy remodeling of our constitution, and have been denouncing it as antiquated, lacking in flexibility and unsuited to an age of "progress," that the British constitution has precisely the flexibility and quick responsiveness to popular desires which they affect to prefer. Under it no court can declare an act of parliament unconstitutional, but, on the contrary, parliament may at any time annul any decision of any court. The constitution may be amended or altered at any time at the will of parliament. Yet here is this venerable parliamentarian and constitutionalist gravely warning us in effect, against that system and pointing out to us the immense superiority of our own. That is a tribute to our fundamental law which ought not to pass unappreciated, and the significance of which ought not to fail to be perceived. It would be discreditable to us to have it said that our constitution was better understood and appreciated in other countries than in our own.

THE REPUBLIC OF CHINA.

From the Chicago Tribune.
The failure of the administration to recognize the republican government of China has aroused the surprise of a good many of our people. In his statement of December 3 President Taft expressed sympathy with the effort of the Chinese people to establish a republic, but explains the failure to recognize the new government by saying that he prefers to await the results of the election to be held in January. This is cold comfort. The government is established, it has been working since last February, and the elections of next January are not to determine whether the government is to be continued republican, but who shall operate its machinery in behalf of the people.

The explanation seems hardly sufficient. The refusal to recognize the republican government is virtually to cooperate with its opponents. Russia is acting more or less openly against it, and would undoubtedly like to see it fail. Our position strengthens her efforts. Moreover, we have thrown in our lot in the matter of loans with the so-called "financial group" of powers. That is to say, we have taken the same view as they do, that our people should not lend money to China unless the Chinese government will turn over to foreigners revenues and their expenditure. This would be to abrogate its functions, and such a demand is unworthy of the United States. Its effect is to weaken and not to strengthen the spread of democratic government.

When the "dollar diplomats" of the state department have been criticized, the reply has been that in the opinion of the department international friendship can be best promoted by commercial intercourse. Sometimes it can, especially when the advantages of the commercial intercourse are not all or mainly on one side. Sometimes, however, good relations can be promoted by the establishment of other than commercial relations. Sympathy with the ideals of a people who are striving to better themselves, such cooperation as will prevent their enemies from strangling their new ideals, and a declaration that we are on the side of their aspirations will sometimes do far more than even "dollar diplomacy." There are other relations between nations than those of trade.

One cannot help thinking that we would stand better in the eyes of the world, would be more helpful to the Chinese people, and would be truer to our own ideals of democracy if we should promptly recognize the new government. With all respect to the sincerity of purpose of our present state department, one cannot help feeling that it is a far cry from the policy of Burlingame to that of Knox.

THE DELIRIOUS REPORTER.

From the Gary Tribune.
The ball room of the Commercial club, was a scene gorgeously beautiful. Graceful and indeed seasonable, yellow chrysanthemums added glorious color to the already magnificent effect, and exquisite contrast was afforded by the embankment of palms on the stage. The floors were covered with rare oriental rugs of diverse sizes and patterns, all of the foregoing converting the usually bare room into a drawing room of the type of elegance befitting a French salon. One feels the inadequacy of the vocabulary at one's command and longs for novel terms with which to describe the luxuriance displayed on all sides—the truly significant magnificence of it all.

Some Sayings of Washington

By RUTH CAMERON.

On Lincoln's birthday we always see a great many columns in the newspapers and magazines devoted to sayings of Lincoln. But did you ever see a column of sayings of Washington on the twenty-second of February?

Unquestionably this is because the genius of Washington is so totally different from that of Lincoln. The statesman, aristocrat, Virginian statesman could not, in the nature of things, be so unshrewd, so human and so eminently quotable as the beloved sage of Illinois.

Nevertheless Washington really did say quite a few things. Below are some of them:

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace."

"To persevere in one's duty and be silent is the best answer to calumny."

"Let posterity cheer for us. (Said to have been spoken at the surrender of the sword of Cornwallis.)"

"I hope I shall always possess firmness and virtue enough to maintain what I consider the most valuable of all titles, the character of an honest man."

"There is not a man living who wishes more sincerely than I do to see a plan adopted for the abolition of slavery." (Written to Robert Morris in 1786.)

"The aggregate happiness of society is, or ought to be, the end of all government."

"Associate with men of good quality; if you eatem your reputation, for it is better to be alone than in bad company."

"I heard the bullets whistle, and believe me, there is something charming in the sound." (Written to his mother after the battle.)

"I need no guard but the feelings of the people."

"Advance, sir, and deliver your word. I lie here to think and not to sleep." (Spoken to a sentry one night as he lay in his tent supposedly asleep.)

"Whether tonight, or 20 years hence makes no difference. I know that I am in the hands of a good providence." (Said when he was seriously ill.)

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash"
(Copyrighted by George Mathew Adams.)

This is the 22nd of February, but very few people in the United States would recognize it by that name any more, than they would know what the twenty-fifth of December meant.

The 22nd of February has a nickname in this country. It is "Washington's Birthday." Only a few men are powerful enough to make one of the days in the calendar famous. Before Washington's time, the 22nd of February was an ordinary scrub day, with no reputation, and was usually cursed for its temperature. Now people look forward to it for months, especially banqueters, and little children learn pieces to speak at school in its honor.

That's what Washington did for the 22nd of February. He was always doing something nice for somebody. He made it possible for the poor, freezing, homesick soldiers to go home to "England, and he took the infant United States out its most critical period and nursed, instructed and sparked it into good sense and promise.

All of these facts are celebrated on Washington's birthday. But most of all we celebrate the fact that Washington had a birthday. If Washington had been omitted from the vital statistics of the colonies there is no telling what would have happened to us. A great many men have been richer than Washington was. Several have been better soldiers and a number have been better statesmen. But we do not celebrate their birthdays with flags and speeches and 11-course banquets. We do not take one of our precious 365 days and name it for any one of them. It takes more than wealth, statesmanship and shoulder-straps to acquire a deathless and inspiring birthday.

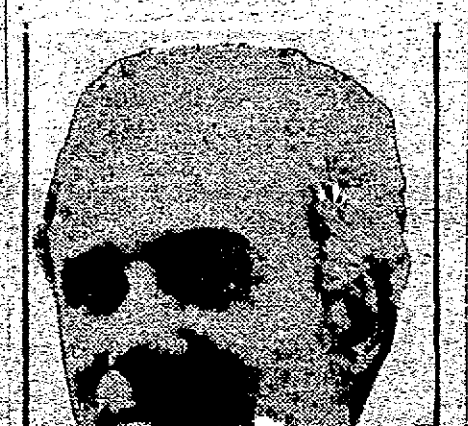

If Washington had thought more about the peril to wealth and business when the Revolution opened, he would have stayed on his plantation and let his birthday go hang. If he had been a politician he would have spent the winter lobbying in Philadelphia instead of wrestling in prayer at Valley Forge. If he had had a streak of yellow as narrow as a piece of baby ribbon, he would have used his influence to bring about peace, with concessions, and would have become a British duke instead of remaining the only man in the country with a price on his head. If he had thought of his own prospects and sought in his own interests, he would have taken his doll things back to Virginia a dozen times when the opposition which was snugly out of range of the enemy, kept hammering him. If he had had an itch for glory, he would have pulled a few wires and become a king, instead of becoming the president of a punk and busted republic with a lot of "fine but impossible" theories and $175 in the national treasury as assets.

But Washington didn't do any of these things, and the result is his birthday gets more ponderous every year, and England is now going to put his head in Westminster Abbey, whereas 125 years ago she yearned to stick it on a spike on London bridge. It takes pain and suffering and great bravery to acquire a 1,000,000,000-candlepower birthday which will illuminate history, and most of us sidestep the task.

IN THE FAR DAYS

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

February 22, 1883.

The banks were closed, as were many of the business houses, but otherwise there was no special observance of Washington's birthday in Colorado Springs.

Many Colorado Springs people went over to an entertainment at Saratoga hall in Manitou for the benefit of the Congregational church there.

Hon W. S. Jackson returned from an eastern visit.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

February 22, 1893.

A "book social" held at the free library resulted in adding several hundred volumes to the shelves of that institution, which was a forerunner of the public library.

Washington's birthday was quite generally observed, but in a very quiet way. Many of the business houses and all the public offices were closed.

There was a baseball game between the high school and college teams, in which the latter were victorious by a score of 10 to 9.

THE HASKIN LETTER

THE LETCHWORTH ARBORETUM

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

One of the most interesting of all the experiments in the direction of forest conservation is that being initiated by the American Scenic and Historic Preservation society at Letchworth park, New York. All of the valuable timber trees of the world which will grow in a climate corresponding to that at Letchworth park are being planted in this great arboretum, and definite efforts will be made to learn the full possibilities of these woods when grown under forest conditions in the United States. Planted singly and in groups will be every kind of tree that has any chance of growing in such a climate. Visitors will thus be afforded an opportunity to study the value of trees for ornamental planting and for landscape purposes.

To each species of tree is assigned an irregular block of ground of an acre or more in area, and the trees will be planted and the grounds laid off with due regard for landscape and color effects. Planting will be so close as to simulate forest conditions, and each tree will be given a good start and told to shift for itself. In this way trees unfitted to grow under such conditions will be eliminated, but when all the plants of ground have been planted with trees that will grow, Letchworth park will contain more kinds of commercially valuable trees than any other forest in the world.

Through this forest will run winding bridge paths, and as the visitor traverses them he will see growing all the commercially valuable trees of the United States and Canada, those of Europe, and those from many of the little-known regions of the earth. It is intended to make this arboretum of value not only to the professional forester, but to every American citizen who is about to undertake tree planting and who wishes to get the benefit of the lessons at Letchworth park.

Letchworth Park.

The history of Letchworth park begins in 1855, when William Pryor Letchworth, a citizen of Buffalo, bought a place around where he could free himself from the cares of business. He bought a place at the Upper Falls of the Genesee river, near Portage, which he named Glen Iris. Most of the land had been denuded by the woodman's ax and the sawmill, but Letchworth set to work to restore it to its pristine beauty. He employed the science of the forester and the art of the landscape gardener, and soon had one of the show places of New York state a place where Nature was dressed in its best by art.

He acquired other land from time to time, lying on both sides of the Genesee river, until he owned about a thousand acres, embracing the three famous Portage falls and the wonderful gorge cut by the river. The work of primitive man speaking in the rocks of the forest and called upon him to establish a museum for the relics of the Indians who once peopled that region. And in carrying out that idea he secured the old council house in which they held their councils; he brought back for reverent sepulture the remains of Mary Jemison, the splendid young white woman who consecrated her life to the welfare of the Indians.

In 1898 Dr. Letchworth consulted with many friends, and a year later decided to present his state to the people of the state of New York, retaining a life tenancy, which was terminated by his death in December, 1910. A condition of the gift was that it was to be in the permanent custody of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation society, which organization is preparing to make the gift of the greatest possible ultimate value to the people of the nation.

Will Enhance Knowledge.
It is intended that the value of the arboretum will not merely consist in a demonstration of the results that may be expected to follow forest plantation of various kinds of trees, but that our exact knowledge of tree life will be enhanced. Skilled observations and systematic records will be kept; the measure of each growing tree will be taken at stated times; their height, diameter, etc., will be recorded, and their behavior in pure stands and when growing with other kinds of trees, their influence upon the forest floor.

Not for Sentiment.
The friends of forestry point out that the man and woman of the world are not planted for sentiment's sake; that Germany does not plant many trees for each one that is cut down simply because a forest is beautiful. That India does not spend four million dollars a year in planting trees simply to while away the time; that Russia is not forcing its evergreen forests further north over the bleak steppes of Siberia simply with the hope of bringing more cheer to its lands of banishment; that France is not reverting the Alps simply that the traveler may behold the trees in their beauty. They use that all these nations are doing forestry work because national thrift prompts it, and national welfare demands it.

It is said that we waste more wood per capita than any other nation on the globe.

GENERAL HOLIDAY TODAY

Washington's Birthday will be observed as a general holiday in Colorado Springs today. The business, city and county offices and many of the stores will remain closed, and the holiday schedule will be in effect at the post-office.

The celebration began yesterday, the most prominent feature being the annual Washington birthday exercises at the Grand Opera house last night under auspices of Duquesne council No. 12, J. O. U. A. M., for the children of the city schools and Cheyenne school.

W. J. Palmer post, G. A. R., and the Ladies circle celebrated the anniversary with a Washington-Lincoln program in the Methodist church, Colorado city. Yesterday afternoon a Washington-Lincoln program was given by the Ladies of the G. A. R. and the Daughters of Veterans in G. A. R. hall, and the girls club, organized under supervision of the Y. W. C. A., held a celebration in its club house.

Tomorrow Universal Day of Prayer in Colleges

Sunday, February 23, is observed by colleges throughout the world as the day of prayer for colleges and it will be observed at Colorado colleges tomorrow in a rather novel way. There will be a college devotional service in Perkins hall at 10:30 a. m., led by President W. F. Slocum. This service will be immediately followed by a college communion service at 11:15 a. m., at which President Slocum and the Rev. Manly D. Ornes, the college librarian will officiate, assisted by several of the older members of the faculty.

The regular vesper service will be held at 8 o'clock in the afternoon in Perkins hall when Prof. George Herbert Palmer will preach, taking as his subject "Prayer." The anthem by the college choir will be "Benedictus," "Light and Life Immortal." The vesper service is open to the public.

MUCH INTEREST IN ART EXHIBIT

IMPRESSIONISTIC STYLE IN PUBLIC EYE NOW

Miss Shinn, Supervisor of Drawing, Gives Sketch of the New School

The exhibit of paintings by Philip Little, which is now being held in the postoffice building by the Colorado Springs Art society is attracting hundreds of enthusiastic visitors every day, and before it is necessary to return the collection next week, it is probable that the total number of those attending will be even greater than at the first exhibit a month ago.

Little's subjects, the majority of them on view here at least, are along the impressionistic style, which is just now much in the public eye in an artistic way, and for that reason there is added interest to the present exhibit. Miss Alice Shinn, supervisor of drawing in the local public schools, has the following to say of the impressionistic school:

The Impressionistic School.
The middle of the last century saw a great change in the spirit of landscape painting. The older painters had worked largely in their studios. Younger men took their easels out into the open to study nature at closer range. The older artists had laid on their canvases beautiful patterns of rich browns and greens, with skies not too highly colored for fear of a dash in the harmony. The work of doors had to be a compromise, and if we may judge from the results they contained themselves with the spirit of a summer day, a day of "sad" rather than of "singing" weather. With a more intimate knowledge of nature the new men proclaimed the methods hitherto employed quite wrong fundamentally. They declared the undertones of brown a mistake, and that shadows out of doors were cool, not warm. The light seemed to dawn in the new men set their palettes with the colors of the prism, discarding the heavy earth colors of brown and black, keying their color schemes to a blonde rather than a brunette standard of beauty. The world they discovered by several countries almost simultaneously. The largest group of coworkers in the new movement was in France. They were derisively called by the critics "The Impressionists," and by their name which they themselves finally adopted, and also by the name of "The Luminarists," they have since been known. Perhaps no movement since the great Renaissance of the Fifteenth century has so stirred the artistic world. The world they discovered by several countries almost simultaneously. Departure from Tradition.
To this departure from traditional ways of painting we owe the brilliant coloring of the present exhibition. To Constable and Bonington in England and to Corot of the Barbizon school in France, the inspiration to draw nearer to nature came about the same time. They were the heralds of the new movement which by their translations in silvery sketches, rather than of gold. They depicted grass and leaves spangled with reflections from the sky. Their trees told of the way of tree trunks and the glances of the "living" world. The new movement was a departure from tradition. W. E. HOOK SERIOUSLY ILL
Wallace E. Hook, 47 years old, and for many years a resident of Colorado Springs, was taken to St. Francis hospital yesterday morning, suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia. So far as can be learned, he has no immediate relatives living here.

Years ago Hook received considerable publicity locally because he secured a franchise to operate a street railway in Colorado Springs in opposition to the present system. He made a beginning by laying a few rails on East Boulder street, but never did anything further so far as exercising the rights of his franchise was concerned. The rails were removed about three years ago at the order of Street Commissioner Davison, and the franchise was subsequently canceled by the city.

At one time Hook and his father, who was a Chicago jurist, owned practically the entire block bounded by Platte avenue, Institute, Cedar and Boulder streets, but this was disposed of years ago. Hook is a taxidermist.

Robin and Touring Party Contradict Snow; Spring Here

The first robin sang the other day. At 9 o'clock last night a Raymond-Whitcomb touring party arrived from the west over the Denver & Rio Grande railroad and registered at the Antlers hotel.

The robin's song means that spring is here, and the touring party, the first of the year, means that the tourist season is on. The snow storm was only an incident, although some people who have lived here for more than 30 years and have seen many touring parties come and go, say that the Raymond-Whitcomb party brought the storm. They say they have never seen this to fall—the first Raymond-Whitcomb party always brings a storm.

But, at any rate, spring is here, and the tourist season is on.

The Raymond-Whitcomb party consists of 52 persons, traveling in three Pullmans. It is made up of tours "J" and "K." The party will remain here until 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon.

WILL URGE LEGISLATION TO AID THE HOMESTEADER

Legislation that will relieve the burdens now imposed by the government on the homesteader in Colorado and throughout the entire west where land is plentiful, will be part of the work which Congressman-elect Seldombridge hopes to accomplish during his term in the national house of representatives. This announcement was made Thursday night by Mr. Seldombridge, who, with Mrs. Seldombridge, left at 10:30 o'clock that evening for Washington.

Mr. Seldombridge will succeed Congressman Martin March 1, when the new administration takes up the reins of the national government.

"I am interested in trying to help the homesteader," Mr. Seldombridge said. "We have such a large amount of available land to be populated that something must be done to help the newcomer, instead of hindering him. The tendency in the last few years has been to increase the pressure on the homesteader by making it very difficult for him to prove up on his property. I am unalterably for a more liberal homestead policy, and will do my best in congress to bring it about. I have received hundreds of letters from settlers in all parts of the state, asking me to try to lessen their hardships, and I hope to do so if possible."

To Attend Reorganization.
Mr. Seldombridge received a telegram from Representative Burleson of Texas, chairman of the ways and means committee, asking him to be present at the reorganization meeting of the house, which will be held at noon, March 5.

Regarding his stand on the tariff reduction measures, which will come up at the extra session to be called by President Wilson shortly after his inauguration, Mr. Seldombridge stated:

"I expect to support the policy that will be outlined by the ways and means committee. The individual bills have not yet been reported, and I have not been advised on the plans with reference to the tariff on metals and on sugar that will affect Colorado industries. I am for a reduction of the tariff, of course."

Asked as to his recommendation for postmaster in Colorado Springs, Mr. Seldombridge said that he has been approached by scores of people, but that he has made no decision of any kind. "I haven't heard what influence congress will have on the president's recommendations for postmasterships," he said. "Since Postmaster Strachen's term does not expire until January, 1914, there will be plenty of time to look over the field."

Mr. and Mrs. Seldombridge will reach Washington Tuesday. He has been assigned offices in the congressional building now occupied by his predecessor, Mr. Martin. He will stop at the Hyland hotel until after inauguration.

At the close of the extra session this summer, Mr. and Mrs. Seldombridge will return to Colorado Springs to remain until the regular session opens in December.

MORE SNOW TODAY

The predicted cold wave struck this region shortly after midnight yesterday morning, and at daybreak the mercury fell to five degrees below zero. The weather moderated during the day, and at 8 o'clock last night the thermometer registered 10 degrees above zero, after touching 15 degrees below at noon. The snowfall, which reached a depth of about 12 inches at some places in the county, was the heaviest of the season. More snow is predicted for today.

TO INVESTIGATE ALLEGED CHARGE OF $5 BY COMPANY
The city clerk was instructed yesterday by the council to investigate a report that the Colorado Springs Light, Heat and Power company is making an extra charge of $5 for new installations on the ground that the cost of inspection under the excavation ordinance necessitates it. It was stated that under the amendment to the ordinance the inspection cost is saved, and that there is no justification for continuing the $5 added charge.

A Splendid Tonic
Cor. Ky.—Mrs. Iva Moore, of this place, says: "I was so weak, I could hardly walk. I tried Cardui, and was greatly relieved. It is a splendid tonic. I have recommended Cardui to many friends, who tried it with good results." Testimony like this comes unsolicited, from thousands of earnest women, who have been benefited by the timely use of that successful tonic medicine, Cardui. Purely vegetable, mild, but reliable, Cardui well merits its high place in the esteem of those who have tried it. It relieves women's pains, and strengthens weak women. It is certainly worth a trial. ## HOPKINS SECRETARY OF MINING EXCHANGE

Charles D. Hopkins yesterday was elected secretary and treasurer of the Colorado Springs Mining Stock association and manager of the clearing house, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge W. P. Kinney from those positions when he was elected president of the Mining exchange, December 1. Mr. Hopkins has been connected with the Mining Stock exchange for the last 12 years in the capacity of caller and assistant secretary.

CITY WILL FORMULATE REGULATIONS AT ONCE TO PROTECT WATERSHED

Regulations for the watershed secured by the Colorado Springs-Manitou land bill will be formulated immediately by the city council, acting on suggestion of Mayor Avery. City Attorney McKesson yesterday was directed to draw up the desired ordinance, which will be submitted to United States Forester Graves, so that the regulations may be officially approved before any change takes place. The land bill requires that the regulations of the two cities be approved by the forest service. Although the present forester will not continue in that position, his approval will save time and trouble.

An Oklahoma City ordinance, which is said to have been highly praised by the forester, will be taken as a model here. Through a resolution, the city council will extend the thanks of the city to Senators Guggenheim and Thomas and Congressmen Taylor and Martin for the passage of the land bill.

POLITICAL POT BOILING

Former County Commissioner Harry Hutchinson announced yesterday that he will be one of the candidates for city commissioner at the election in April. William L. Spencer announced his candidacy for commissioner some time ago, and among others mentioned are Charles Hobbs, deputy sheriff; W. T. Christopher, former deputy county clerk; Mrs. Jennie Boyd, John Himebaugh and E. C. F. Whitaker.

City Attorney McKesson is the only candidate for mayor who has declared himself.

REPRESENTATIVE HEFLIN'S ATTACK ON WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE "GROWL OF CAVE MAN"—MRS. PITZER

"The growl of the cave man, who desires absolute ownership of his most valued beast," was the words of Mrs. Annie H. Pitzer of this city, sister of Speaker Champ Clark of the national house of representatives, characterizes the attack recently made on the suffrage movement by Representative Tom Hefflin of Alabama.

Speaking from the pulpit of the Baptist church at Falls Church, Va., Sunday, February 9, Representative Hefflin advised the Virginians present:

"The place for the woman's suffrage is not in the ballot box," says Mr. Hefflin. We say that it is through the ballot box that the women of Colorado have safeguarded the home. Women do not have to neglect their homes or lose interest in their husbands and children in order to spend ten minutes once in two years at the ballot box.

"Most of the reform laws of Colorado have been passed under equal suffrage and are the direct outgrowth of it. We suspect that reduced to its lowest terms, this attack of Mr. Hefflin's, which looks on the surface like adoration of womanhood, and beautiful spirit of chivalry, is the growl of the cave man, who desires absolute ownership of his most valued beast. But woman is coming out of the cave."

Mrs. Gardener said that "Thirty-three years before Mr. Hefflin, the Bear Brummell of the house of representatives, was born, Abraham Lincoln expressed his confidence in the womanliness of the women of America in terms now historic and enlightening."

Mrs. Clark declared in part: "No party can afford to slap in the face 1,000,000 women voters. It is a condition and not a theory that confronts us. I think Mr. Hefflin is speaking for himself and is not saying what the whole people of the south believe."

Police Dismiss Lous Theor; Girl Not Freed as Gateway to Pacific

Disclosures yesterday resulted in dismissal of further investigation into what the police believed might prove a white slavery plot involving Louis Theor, a Greek of Denver, and Miss Alice Rutledge, also of Denver. According to information received from the Denver police the girl had been given the choice of going to fill there or leaving town, and it is believed that she appealed to Theor's sympathy and sensibility and induced him to bring her to Colorado Springs. The Greek claimed that he came here to get the consent of the girl's father to their marriage. She told him that her father, George Rutledge, was employed at Pike View.

To the authorities she said she had no intention of marrying Theor, but came here upon being informed that her father had been injured in an accident. Theor was released yesterday. The girl is still locked in the county jail.

Pass Resolutions on Death of B. G. Robbins

The retail merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce, at a recent meeting, adopted the following resolutions on the death of Bertram G. Robbins:

Whereas, It hath pleased Almighty God, in his wise providence to call from us our esteemed associate and friend, Bertram G. Robbins, and
Whereas, We realize that our community has lost one of its most prominent citizens, our Chamber of Commerce one of its most valued members, we as members of this merchant organization one of its most respected associates; therefore be it
Resolved, That we do hereby express our profound sympathy to those who, through the broken ties of closer relationship, are mourning their great loss, assuring them that we shall ever cherish in our hearts the memory of the exemplary life which he lived among us.

We realize that the influences of his life are still alive in our hearts although we can not see his face.

THE DAY'S NEWS IN SPORT CIRCLES

Some Baseball Managers Always Popular With Fans

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Away back in the old days, when baseball was beginning to make itself felt all over the United States, there was a manager by the name of Harry Wright, who was at the head of the Boston National League team, and who probably enjoyed as much personal popularity as any ball manager who ever played.

Baseball men who played and managed men who merely looked at games knew him from one ocean to the other. Of course, there was not as much baseball in California as there was in the east, yet there were men in California who knew all about what Harry Wright had done on the baseball field and who loved to discuss it when they had baseball on the schedule for a "talk fest."

That seems to show that baseball managers are always popular with fans, and in spite of the fact that there seems to be an impression out in California that the managers are not as popular as the players.

The managers are akin to the players and they control the players and use all their influence to obtain the best work that they may from the players, and so they are as much in the public eye as the men who are on the field and who throw the ball and swing the bat.

After Harry Wright there came Anson. Who did not know him, and who doesn't know about him to this date?

LIGHTWEIGHTS AWAIT CALL OF REFEREE'S

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.—Joe Flowers, the Los Angeles lightweight, ruled tonight a 10-to-8 favorite over Knockout Brown of New York, for their 20-round battle at Vernon tomorrow. Both boxers were within the weight limit today after they had concluded light gymnasium work.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—With a match with Champion Willie Ritchie as the first prize, Ad Wolgast, former lightweight champion, and "Harlem Tommy" Murphy will meet here tomorrow in a 20-round fight. Ambitious to renege himself as king of the lightweight division, Wolgast has obtained faithfully—harder, in fact, he says, than for any previous match of his career. He announced tonight that he weighed 133 pounds, having taken off 51-2 pounds in his two weeks' workout.

Murphy weighed 134, one pound above the lightweight limit.

Battling is brisk here tonight, with odds of 10 to 8 in favor of Wolgast.

NO casual glance into the pale-gray eyes behind the heavy glasses, which advertised their near-sightedness, would ever have revealed the wealth of sentiment their owner believed to be embodied in his own proper person.

"Ask your feelings and your thoughts," William Henry Jones was fond of saying, "and you may study the world without permitting the world to study you."

William Henry had reached the age of discretion he was forty-two. He was above, far above, the average intelligence his own estimate. He knew his own mind, being nearer to it than any one else, and, barring defective eyesight, was physically sound from top to toe of his five feet four inches. From all of which it may be inferred that he was rather well pleased with himself.

Jones's other name for sentiment was Myrtle Smyles. He was convinced that she was his true mate, the one woman in all the wide world whom he would ever love to share his heart and his home. And yet he was studiously careful to show to her twin sister Ivy just as many courtesies and kindnesses and little attentions as he paid to Myrtle.

"It is a good thing," he would say, "to keep a woman guessing. It gives her mind something upon which to feed and predisposes her to appreciate happiness as it is full worth when it comes."

"One of these days I shall ask Myrtle to marry me. If I were to ask her now and she should accept—as there is no doubt she would—something might interfere with my plans. That would mean delays, postponements, and what not. Now, delays mean disappointments, and disappointments sour a woman's disposition. And of course I couldn't be expected to make a sour disposition. Then again, if I were to propose now she would feel sure of me, and it isn't well for a man to let a woman feel too sure of him. It might develop in her a tendency to dictate."

Jones carried his diplomacy a little further.

"No man," he observed one evening in the Smyles's drawing-room, "should marry until he has laid by the where-withal to provide his bride and his home with all of the necessities and some of the comforts of life."

"May I ask what you consider a sufficiency for that purpose?" Myrtle's mother inquired.

"I should not think of entering the blessed state with less than twenty thousand dollars in the bank," Jones replied with decision.

William Henry Jones' Courtships

By JOSEPH N. QUAIL

"Twenty thousand nutmegs!" Mr. Smyles ejaculated. "Why, man alive, when I was married I didn't have twenty thousand cents! And if we'd waited until I had twenty thousand dollars, we'd be waiting yet. Eh, mother?"

"It takes a long time to save twenty thousand dollars," Mrs. Smyles said with a sigh.

"That depends," observed William Henry complacently. "It has, I confess, taken me the best part of ten years to store up in the neighborhood of seventeen thousand dollars; but you'll admit, I am sure, that with this amount drawing interest, it will take a much shorter time to gather the last three thousand dollars than it did the first."

"Yes, that is true," Mrs. Smyles assented, and seemed to find some comfort in the fact.

"It wouldn't make the slightest difference to me whether the man I loved had much or little," Myrtle observed. "Think of wasting the best part of one's life in a scramble for wealth that may be won too late and of the lost years of companionship. It's all too sad to contemplate. When I find my prince I shall take him as he is, rich or poor."

"Prince?" William Henry repeated, a shade of reproach in his tone.

"Just a figure of speech, Mr. Jones," Myrtle's mother hastened to say. "The man she marries will be a prince to her, even though the world call him a pauper."

"Why, mother, how can a man be a pauper if he has seventeen thousand dollars in the bank?" Ivy asked innocently.

"Seventeen thousand dollars!" Myrtle's father mumbled. "His lips and permitted the words to dribble over them in a way which suggested that he found them sweet and tasty. "And twenty is the mark? Then, my boy, I should imagine that you must be drawing near to the goal and climax."

"I have also," said William Henry, mentally shaking hands with himself, "some small investments which, my broker tells me, look promising—very promising. They already show a good profit, and it is not at all unlikely that within the week I shall have added rather more than three thousand dollars to my bank account."

"And then?" inquired Mr. Smyles, rubbing his hands and smiling knowingly at Jones. "Mrs. Smyles waited breathlessly for the answer.

CENTENNIAL BEATS CENTRAL, 39 TO 12

Special to The Gazette.

PUEBLO, Feb. 21.—The Centennial High school, by defeating the Central High school, 39-12, here, this afternoon, clinched the basketball championship of the southern division of the state, and put itself in line for the all-Colorado title. The Centennial team played fast and snappy this afternoon, and showed up as one of the best teams developed in the southern division of the state in recent years. Dopesters 16-11, regard the Centennial chances of winning the state title as excellent.

CAMP THINKS FOOTBALL RULES NEED NO CHANGE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 21.—Walter Camp, in the Yale Daily News, makes the following statement on the work of the football rules committee:

There was evidently a full appreciation among the members of the committee that the code of 1912 had worked such satisfactory results in the style of the game that alterations in that code would be a mistake if they intended to change what was a known, satisfactory game for a more experimental one. Hence, they made few alterations.

"The one that is the most important, and, in fact, the only one that is likely to affect the play itself, is the elimination of the five-yard restriction on kicks. This will bring back the possibility of the quick kick from scrimmage formation, one of the most excellent of the old methods for surprising the opponents. It catches them unawares and gives possibilities of kicking over the head of the full-back. The balance of the alterations are more for the sake of classifying doubtful rulings."

"One other rule might perhaps be mentioned that will be of interest to captains and coaches. That is the rule which in its altered form permits of returning to the game a player who has been taken out. Formerly he could be thus returned only at the beginning of a subsequent period. Hence, if the fourth period had begun, he could not thereafter be returned. The new ruling permits him to return at any time during the last period."

The numbering of players was discussed, but no action was taken, as the committee felt that it might not be well to add to the expense of equipment for smaller teams, and that without further investigation. There might be complications, such as the immediate provision of numbers or jerseys with numbers on in case of a torn uniform, which might delay the game. It was, therefore, left to teams to do what they thought best in the matter.

NINTH INNING BATTING WINS FOR ROBBINS

That sturdy Indian warrior from the wilds of Amsterdam, Dutch Dixie, has another scalp to hang to his belt. For last night, in an indoor baseball game at the Y. M. C. A. gym, he clouted out a two-base hit in the ninth inning, sent in two runs, and so brought the first defeat of the Holy Name team this season. The final score was 5-3 in favor of the Robbins team. In that last half of the ninth inning, Goss drew a base on balls, Fowler got a base hit, and then the Dutchman of the mighty war club broke things up.

The scalp went to Dixie, but his team mates had as much to do with the victory as did he. Fowler, pitching for the Robbins team, had things all his way for the first seven innings. During the whole nine innings he struck out 18 men, and gave only two bases on balls. Barnes, the Holy Name twirler, was out of form, and although he struck out 21 men, he gave five bases on balls.

The game was even and exciting throughout.

The Holy Name team, the champions of the local league, are to meet the Denver Athletic club team, the Denver champions, at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium tonight in a game for the championship of the state.

SPRINTER NELSON SAYS HE'LL CONTINUE RACING

PULLMAN, Wash., Feb. 21.—Frank Lavin of Pullman has received a letter from Jack Nelson, the champion 100 and 200-yard sprinter of the United States, who won these titles at Chicago while a student in Washington State college. Nelson is teaching chemistry and coaching the athletic teams in the California Polytechnic school at San Luis Obispo, Cal., where he has been since graduating from Washington State college in 1911.

Nelson writes that he is in fine physical condition and is "as fast as ever," and that he intends to continue amateur racing again this season. "I expect to take two or three more national championships before I give up the game," writes Nelson, who promises to visit Pullman next summer.

Bill Sepsas, the Portland outfielder, who will be accorded a chance with the St. Louis Cardinals, has been putting in his time this winter playing football and running a bowling alley out in Oregon.

CARR SUGGESTS A BASEBALL SCHOOL

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—A baseball school, backed with capital to the extent of $1,000,000, and conducted along lines decidedly novel, is a possibility of the near future. Charles Carr, at one time a member of the Detroit team, and during the last few years connected with various American association teams as manager, revived the idea and soon will put the matter up to the national commission for a sanction.

Carr has interested several wealthy men in the project and will have unlimited backing in his efforts to make the school a success.

Carr proposes to secure one big hotel in the south, with grounds large enough for 15 or 20 diamonds, where all the major league clubs can train in the spring. The idea of the promoter is to have organized baseball stand behind the plan, and inducements will be offered to have all the clubs establish training quarters at the same place.

Basketball Teams at Y.W.C.A. Today

The basketball teams of the Steele school, this city, and the Ashland school of Denver are scheduled to play at the Y. M. C. A. gym this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. This will be the first grammar school team from out of town to play the locals, and a close contest is looked for.

The Steele school team claims the championship of the local grammar school league, but this claim is disputed by the Liller school, which claims a tie with one game yet to be played. The tangled situation arises out of a game scheduled for last Saturday between the two teams. This game, because of the illness of several of the Liller players, was not played. The Steele team claims that it was forfeited, but the Liller team claims that it was only postponed, and is yet to be played, on March 1, one week from today. Before the game the two teams were tied, and if it was forfeited the championship goes to the Steele school. The Lillers are, however, strong in their assertions that the Steeles must beat them before they can claim the city championship.

Ashland holds the Denver championship in the grammar league, and has also defeated a number of High school teams. Coach Erps of the locals has his team in good condition for the game today, and the contest should be close.

As an added attraction, two girl teams from the Steele school will play a game of indoor baseball.

Big League Players Can Boast of Many Odd Names

A glance at the reserve lists of the various major and minor league clubs discloses many players with odd names, which give the Winter State league dopesters plenty of fuel during the snowball season.

The humble pencil-pushers who are the names would delight in a line-up composed of Mr. Nee, Eas, Eng, Erb, You, Ott, Ute, Lee, Upp and Ray.

The hard-working club owners could wear a contented smile with Moneymaker, Goodman, Blunting, Flagg, Bagwell, Hipful, Hitt, Doubles, Triplett, Nickel, Fautling, Fenner, Sculling and Ten Million signed up for the season.

The hopeful fans would hail with delight a fighting line-up like Corbett, Sullivan, "Kid" McCoy, "Bat" Nelson, Ike Weir, Jack Ryan, Sharkey, Jenkins and McCarty. All these names are found in the 1913 baseball directories.

The much abused umpire would feel out of place with Crab, Kick, Bump, Jolly, Sweet, Sours, Bull, Sharp, Friend and Neighbors crossed off the minor league rosters.

Here we find Greenish and De Camp, with High, Lowe, Jack and a couple of Derriks on the side.

The color scheme in the various circuits is well filled up with such athletes as Blue, Black, Green, Gray, Brown, White, Lemon and Lavender in harness the coming season.

The college fans will find Yale, Brown, Cornell, Williams, Colby, Newton and Holy Cross on the bush league payroll.

The various trades appear to be well represented on the rosters with a Mason, Cooper, Baker, Barber, Brewer, Cook, Butler, Carpenter, Painter, Farmer, Loyer and Schumaker in uniform during 1913.

Names like Sprinkle, Freeze, Snow, Hamey, Jack Frost, Chill and Flood are not pleasing to the magistrates and fans, but they do appear in the baseball directories.

If you call the list for other odd names you will find Eash, Pike, Salmone, Crabbs, Red Hertrum, Hawk, Bird and Parrott.

Then we have Woodlen and Cotton, Spring, Summer and Winter, with Jones and Kanyon sandwiched in between.

Here's Dewey, Sampson, and Admiral, Schell, and a Duke, Prince, Kaiser, Earle and King.

An infield composed of Stone, Rock and Brick would look good on any diamond. These, too, are found in the army of ball tossers.

Long and Short, East and West, Cole and Wood, Hill, Giant and Dale, Billiard and Poppe, Wolf and Fox, with Nicodemus and Lazarus sprinkled between, complete the list of a few odd names on the reserve lists for 1913.

RIFLE CLUB HOLDS BIG MATCH TODAY

The Washington birthday shoot, known as the American record match for the championship of the United States, and which takes place annually throughout the country today, will be participated in by the members of the Colorado Springs Rifle club today. A number of some of the best shots in the west will be here today to take part in the event.

Tomorrow the Denver Post trophy shoot will take place at the club's range near Colorado City, which includes 50 shots per man for the trophy and the championship of Colorado. All who are interested in shooting are invited to the range today and tomorrow. Among the local men who will compete are: J. M. Auld, J. H. Finnup, G. W. Howard, Thomas T. Wright, N. S. Davis, D. Grace, C. D. Cooley, Charles Hastings. Those from out of town will be A. G. Bitter, champion of the United States; A. W. Peterson, holder of the Denver Post trophy; E. W. Young of Denver; Dr. Ashley of Canon City; W. S. Green, T. D. East and Thomas Headley, three of the best shots from the southern parts of the state, and a number of others. This match is open to all and includes 100 shots per man.

President Charles Ebberts signed First Roseman Jake Daubert for 1913, 1914 and 1915 and then told the contractors to go ahead and finish the park.

Saturday.

JONES:

"You will oblige me by discontinuing your visits to my house. I am Jack Jones, a man of my habits. I am a fit associate for my children."

"When I meet you, if you happen then to be sober enough to understand English, I shall demand of you an explanation of your daring to enter my home in my present condition, propose marriage to one of my daughters, and then cause the newspapers to publish notices of your engagement to the other."

The original of the enclosed notice, I am informed by telephone from the newspaper offices, is in doubt with your name and address."

You are a contemptible scoundrel.

"Certainly I put that notice in the papers!" Jones bellowed, frantic with rage. "Make the most of it! I'd do it myself if I could! Smyles is an idiot! Bah! Bah!"

There was a timid knock on the door. Jones dashed at it and threw it wide open.

"Come in!" he roared, then drew back in amazement as Ivy faced him meekly and with unshed tears in her eyes.

"My dear Ivy, be apologized. I thought it was some trouble."

"It is!" she sobbed as she closed the door behind her. "Then I shall go into a chair, covered her eyes with her ungloved hands, and wept bitterly."

William Henry staggered back against his desk as he saw gleaming on her engagement finger the gem he supposed he had placed upon Myrtle's hand.

"This is an unexpected pleasure!" he gasped.

"Yes, mother, a heart-break!" sobbed Ivy. "I've come to return your ring."

"Why?" William Henry demanded, his senses reeling.

"I told you it was a mistake when you asked me to marry you," she said. "Her lips quivered, and she saw a tear fall upon her hand."

"But it wasn't!" William Henry cried, remembering only the thrill of joy he had derived from the kiss of the woman before him. "It wasn't. To prove it, I ask you again to be my wife—now—here! Mistake? Non-sense!"

"Then what does this mean?" Ivy sobbed, holding out a printed slip clipped from a morning newspaper. "It announces your engagement to Myrtle!"

"That," said William Henry, his mind made up and his confidence returning—"that means nothing, absolutely nothing. I will see that the newspapers publish a correction tomorrow. Then he firmly folded her in his arms and kissed her."

"But father?" Ivy protested.

"Leave him to me," said Jones grimly.

"I don't understand yet," she said doubtfully, "how they could have got Myrtle's name in the paper. Do you?"

"That," said Jones unblushingly, "is easy to explain. You see, it was one of those what-do-you-call-ems—a typographical error, my love."

DISCUSS PROPOSED DEAL AT MEETING ON TUESDAY

A motion which will recommend for investment purposes the stock of the company which plans to buy and develop the Clarke Magnetic Mineral springs in Pueblo will be considered at a meeting next Tuesday of the Pueblo Commercial club. A special investigating committee of the club, valuing the property at $100,000, has reported favorably on the proposition. The deal for the formation of the company has been on for some time between local and Pueblo parties and the owners of the springs, Chas. T. Ferling and L. C. Perkins of this city, who represent the purchasing parties, will visit Pueblo for the meeting of the Commercial club next Tuesday.

When Burton Holmes recently gave his celebrated travelogue on "Panama" at Orchestra Hall, Chicago, he was seriously interrupted by continual coughing of the audience. Many a good sermon, lecture or concert is spoiled in the same way. No one enjoys willingly and if people with coughs, colds, hoarseness and tickling in throat would use Foley's Honey & Tar Compound, they could quickly cure their coughs and colds and avoid this annoyance. It is a splendid household medicine and contains no opiates. The Robinson Drug Co. Adv.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

A Washington party program will be given at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The Y. M. C. A. orchestra will be assisted in a musical program by a pianist and violinist from the State School for the Deaf and Blind. There also will be solos by Miss Leona Thatcher and a vocalist from the blind school. The building will be decorated in national colors, and all friends of the association are invited.

News of Local Courts

The city of Colorado City yesterday filed a motion for a new trial in the district court in the suit developing from condemnation proceedings of that city against W. M. Barr and Edward P. Ripley, for right-of-way through their property for extension of Twelfth street from Washington avenue to Lincoln avenue. A jury in the district court this week awarded Barr $600 and Edward R. Ripley $633.35 damages. The motion states that the values awarded and damages are excessive, and appear to have been given under influence of passion and prejudice.

Ida Layton was granted a divorce from Thomas J. Layton yesterday in the district court on the ground of nonsupport. The couple were married in Colorado Springs, November 9, 1908. Mrs. Layton declared that her husband never had supported her, but, on the contrary, that she had supported him. Her maiden name, Ida Lewis, was restored to her.

F. Riatt was fined $4 in police court yesterday, on a charge of intoxication. In default of payment he was committed to jail.

A mechanic's lien for $56 for labor and material was filed by Frank Priess yesterday in the office of the county clerk against John Worley, on property in Rustic Home addition, Colorado City.

A jury in the district court yesterday awarded William Lyle $4,000 damages against the Lake George Development company, for injuries sustained in an ice conveyor at the company's plant. Lyle brought suit for $5,000 damages.

Societies and Clubs

The Ladies of the Modern Maccabees will meet in Odd Fellows hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock. There will be initiation and fancy drill, followed by a Washington program. All members are requested to attend, as Mrs. Laura Cate of Michigan will be present.

"Industrial Accidents in Colorado" will be the subject under consideration by the Brotherhood class of the First Congregational church at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The discussion will be opened by Dean E. D. Hale, of Colorado college, who has looked up the literature which contains information on this subject. All interested are welcome.

Chapter C. P. E. O. will meet this afternoon at 2 o'clock with the Misses Jordan, at their home, 22 East San Miguel street. Members of chapter K of Manitou will be the guests of chapter C at this meeting.

A meeting of the Ladies of the Modern Maccabees will be held at 7:30 o'clock this evening in L. O. O. F. hall. There will be an initiation, a fancy drill for the guards and a George Washington program.

Death and Funerals

Miss Mary McAllister, sister of Maj. Henry McAllister of this city, died Thursday night in Philadelphia, according to word received here yesterday. Miss McAllister was well known in this city, having often visited her brother, Maj. Henry McAllister, one of the best known of the pioneers of the region.

The funeral of Mrs. Mabel M. Anderson will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the residence, 11 North Eighteenth street, interment being in Evergreen cemetery.
